CAB STRIKE IN TWO STABLES

FEW LIBERTY DAWN ASSOCIATION MEN QUIT WORK.

Trouble is Over Signing a Closed Shop Agreement—Some Auto Drivers are Also Out—Strike Breakers Are Ready and Cabs Leave Both the Stables.

The effect yesterday of the strike order of the Liberty Dawn Association of Coach Drivers, issued early yesterday morning, was a strike of the men at the stables of A. D. Moulton, Seventh avenue and Fifty-third street, and at Hall's stables, Sixty-second street and Park avenue. Less than 100, including sixteen chauffeurs employed in the Moulton stables, went out. The Police Department had heard that a general strike of the cab drivers was declared, and when policemen were sent out to report on the matter they were puzzled for a time to find the strike.

Both stables were tied up by the strike and did not attempt to run vehicles with strike breakers until late in the afternoon. The strike was the result of the failure of the final conference between the conference committee of the union and the officers of the Livery Stable Keepers Association on Friday, the question of the closed or open shop causing a deadlock. Everything else was settled, and the employers were willing to make a three years agreement, but the union representatives demanded the closed shop or nothing. This the employers refused to grant.

The two firms through Waddell & McLaughlin obtained a number of strike breakers early in the day. They returned late in the afternoon and eleven cabs with strike breakers were sent from the Moulton stables, where about fifteen policemen under Inspector Walsh of the West Forty-seventh street station were stationed. As the first cab passed out and went toward the corner, a mob of strikers began to loiter but the police looked so threatening that the hooting stopped. A number of strike breakers were also sent out from the Hall stables.

The Livery Stable Keepers Association held a meeting in the afternoon at the Hotel Imperial and affirmed the stand against the closed shop. The stand of the two firms affected by the strike was also endorsed and resolutions were passed to support them.

Edwin Gould, secretary-treasurer of the Liberty Dawn association, said last evening that individual agreements were being made with employers. President William Graven of the union was asked why the two stables had been singled out. He said that all he knew was that the conference committee which had power to act had picked out the two stables.

The Moulton stables supply cab and automobile service to the hotels St. Regis, Gotham and Plaza and the University and New York Athletic clubs. The Hall stables supply the hotels Savoy and Netherland and a number of clubs.

St. J. Reagan, industrial mediator of the State Department of Labor, sent letters yesterday to President Lexow of the Livery Stable Keepers Association and to Secretary-Treasurer Gould of the Liberty Dawn association, recommending that the matter in dispute be again taken up by the representatives of the union and the employers' association. In the event of their failure to agree he recommended that the matter in dispute be left to arbitration.

SOUTH SEA ISLAND TRAGEDIES.

Murders by Natives Punished—French Missionaries Drowned.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 19.—News has been brought here by steamer of several island tragedies in the South Seas. Louis Punet, a French trader, was murdered recently on the island of Ambrym in the New Hebrides and the French warship Kersant has sailed from Neumea to land a punitive expedition.

The British cruiser Prometheus landed a punitive expedition on Santos Island recently to avenge the massacre of Alexander Grieg and his two daughters. A fourteen-year-old boy escaped and hid until the natives who tomahawked the other members of the family had gone away. The village of the tribesmen who murdered the family was surprised and in the fusillade opened on them as they ran six women and a child were killed. The village was burned.

At Erromanga a German trader suddenly became insane and ran amuck. When a trading vessel called for his corpse he fired on it and fled into the bush.

From Ambrym Island news comes of the drowning of Father Perthuis and Sister Marie Clement, Catholic missionaries, and some Kanakas. The sister, exhausted while clinging to the wreckage of the capsized whale boat, asked the priest to administer the last sacrament to her. She died soon afterward and while the priest was administering the sacrament to one of the Kanakas he himself expired.

LOOK IN AT THIS SCHOOL

Where Young Italian Women Are Doing Needlework and Especially Lacework.

On West Thirty-ninth street, five or six doors from Sixth avenue, there is a small green fronted store that is about as unlike the neighboring thoroughfare as one could wish it to be. And if you happen to be well or ill disposed toward a place because of the sign painted on the window you won't have the same feeling as you have for those Greek restaurants and poolrooms the red and yellow signs of which make that part of Sixth avenue look just as the elevated trains make it sound.

The green fronted store has this legend on its window: "Scuola d'Industria Italiana!" It is the place where the young women of the Italian colony have a chance to display the needlework for which their sisters in Italy are famous. But the strange thing about it is that they are able to adapt the work with which they are familiar by early training and heredity to American uses.

Lacework is most in evidence. The young rita matrici do work which has the artistic merit of laces made abroad, but which is peculiarly fitted for American buyers. Lace which has the earmarks of old pieces is converted into caps for American babies, and embroidery which looks as though it might have been designed to enrich the stole of a medieval priest is somehow turned into a desk covering for the office of an American banker. Rinascimento designs are daintily applied to a thousand and one other American uses. Blouses, books, fobs, automobile coats and even bridge scores are touched by Italian hands and become beautiful.

The school was organized in 1905 by a small group of Americans, under the direction of Miss Florence Colgate, with the assistance of Signorina Carolina Amari of Florence. The Scuola numbers among its friends and constant patrons Mrs. Robert Able, Mrs. A. A. Anderson, Mrs. Seth Low, George W. Plimpton and Melville E. Stone.

SHE'S SHE'S NO FORGER.

Mrs. Clapp Insists That Her Forgetful Husband Gave Her the Check.

Mrs. Marie Clapp, who was arrested at the Hotel St. George on Friday night, charged with forging a $500 check for her husband, Herbert Mason Clapp, a retired lawyer of Philadelphia, now in New Braunfels, Tex., was released on parole after arraignment in the Jefferson Market court yesterday.

"My husband gave me that check; made it out to me and told me the sooner I got out of town the better," she told Magistrate Barlow. "Naturally I skipped. All the jewelry I have with me is my own, gained from my husband. He is innumerable for his actions, and says afterward that he does not remember what he has done."

Mrs. Clapp said she had to leave her husband twice before. She accused him of cruelty and intemperance. Six weeks ago, she said, Clapp tried to have her arrested in Atlantic City. He has been divorced from a woman well known in New York, Mrs. Clapp said.

"Well, madam, I shall have to hold you for forty-eight hours to give the complainant a chance to answer you," said the Magistrate. "Have any friends in New York who will go on your bond?"

Mrs. Clapp said her nearest friends were in Philadelphia. Magistrate Barlow then paroled her in the custody of Miss McCusker, the court probation officer. Mrs. Clapp will stay in the Washington Square probation home until Monday morning. She sent to the Hotel St. George for her clothes. Mrs. Clapp is an attractive woman of 24. She takes her arrest coolly, but says she will get satisfaction for the alleged injustice done her.

EIGHT FAMILIES IN PERIL.

Milkman Discovered Early Morning Blaze in a Brooklyn House.

The eight families occupying the Warren, a four story double apartment house at 48 to 50 McDonough street, Brooklyn, were routed out by a fire which started in the basement from some unknown cause about 4 o'clock yesterday morning, and several of the occupants were slightly injured in escaping from the building.

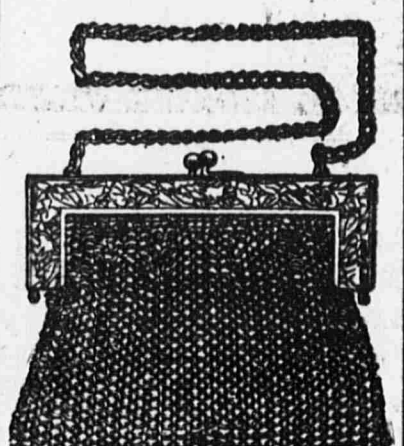

Charles Helms, a milkman of 313 Nostrand avenue, discovered the blaze and by pressing the bell buttons and shouting "Fire!" alarmed the occupants. He then ran to the fire box two blocks away and turned in an alarm. Escape by the main entrance was cut off by the dense smoke, and men, women and children climbed down the rear fire escapes. The firemen carried down two women from the third floor, and several persons on the top floor rushed to the roof and placing some boards over the intervening well passed to the adjoining building. Mrs. Howard Duverly was rescued from a fire escape and was severely bruised.

The firemen extinguished the flames before they had extended beyond the first floor, and the total loss did not exceed $5,000.
